

Restricted Products Guidelines

Please ensure that all your products comply with applicable federal, state and local laws and with Amazon's restricted product guidelines. Schedule 1 lists some examples of products that cannot be lawfully marketed or sold, and products that we do not allow to be marketed or sold on our site. If Schedule 1 includes a product you would like us to consider selling, please contact your Amazon vendor manager, explain why, and provide information showing that the product complies with applicable laws. Schedule 2 lists some examples of products that cannot be lawfully marketed or sold in certain U.S. states or local jurisdictions. If you would like to provide us with any products that are prohibited or restricted in any U.S. state or local jurisdiction, you must first get our specific approval and provide us the required information. Schedule 3 provides guidance on claims that may be made about products and lists some examples of products that must be described or marketed in specific ways. Please ensure that the product information you provide us (including product title, product information, feature bullets, and images) complies with applicable laws.

These non-exhaustive lists are simply examples of product questions that have come up over time. You are, of course, responsible for complying with applicable laws. This document is not meant to serve as legal advice for you. If you have questions about legal requirements for your products, please consult with your legal counsel.

Schedule 2
Restricted Products

Product Type	Nature of the Restriction	Steps Vendor Must Take Before Supplying Product to Amazon
Air guns and airsoft guns	Toy, paintball, airsoft or other replica guns that substantially duplicate or can reasonably be perceived to be an actual gun, unless the products include all required markings to distinguish it from a real gun. For example, New York prohibits the sale of “imitation weapons” as defined in New York’s General Business Law.	If you supply this type of product to Amazon, you must provide an updated list of zip codes you would like for Amazon to block during the new item setup process and then again at the beginning of each quarter.
Products subject to CARB	Products that are shipped to California must comply with the regulations of the California Air Resources Board (CARB).	If your product is not CARB-compliant, you must indicate in the new item setup (NIS) template that the product is “regulated by state or local restrictions.” But if your NIS does not have this particular field, then you must obtain written approval from your Amazon vendor manager before supplying this type of product.
Pepper spray	Pepper Spray is restricted for sale in certain states.	If you supply this type of product to Amazon, you must provide an updated list of zip codes you would like for Amazon to block during the new item setup process and then again at the beginning of each quarter.

Schedule 3

General Listing Restrictions

Category	Restrictions
Claims	Claims made in listings must be accurate and may not be misleading. A claim can be misleading if relevant information is left out or if the claim implies something that is not true. Additionally, all claims must be substantiated, especially when they concern health, safety, or performance. Upon request, you agree to provide Amazon with documentation substantiating any claim you include in a listing. Substantiation requires competent and reliable scientific evidence and may include tests, analyses, research, studies or other evidence based on the expertise of professionals in the relevant area. Examples of claims requiring substantiation include claims that a product is “anti-microbial” or “anti-bacterial” or claims that a product can reduce the risk of concussions. Product marketing is regulated by the Federal Trade Commission. For more information, see the Federal Trade Commission’s Advertising and Marketing on the Internet: Rules of the Road and Dot Com Disclosures: Information About Online Advertising.
Environmental Marketing	Environmental claims in listings must be substantiated and comply with the Guides for the Use of Environmental Marketing Claims. Examples of environmental claims that have been identified by the Federal Trade Commission as potentially problematic include “eco-friendly” and “green.” For more information, see the Federal Trade Commission’s Complying with the Green Guides and Advertising and Marketing on the Internet: Rules of the Road.
Guarantees	Listings must comply with the Guides for the Advertising of Warranties and Guarantees. For example, if you use phrases like "satisfaction guaranteed" or "money-back guarantee" in your listings or seller information pages, you must be willing to give full refunds for any reason. For more information, see the Federal Trade Commission's A Businessperson's Guide to Federal Warranty Law, Consumer Product Warranties and Advertising and Marketing on the Internet: Rules of the Road.
Jewelry Guides	Listings for jewelry industry products (including items like optical frames, writing instruments, and flatware) must comply with the Guides for the Jewelry, Precious Metals, and Pewter Industries. The guides regulate the use of many commonly used terms, such as “pearl,” platinum,” “noncorrosive,” and “flawless.”

	For more information, see the Federal Trade Commission’s Jewelry Guides and Information page and Advertising and Marketing on the Internet: Rules of the Road.
Made in the U.S.A.	Any product that you describe, advertise or label as “Made in the U.S.A.” must be all or virtually all made in the United States. For more information, see the Federal Trade Commission’s Enforcement Policy Statement on U.S. Origin Claims and Advertising and Marketing on the Internet: Rules of the Road. See also the discussions of “Animal Furs and Skins,” “Textile Descriptions,” and “Wool Product Descriptions” on this page for more information on required disclosures of country of origin.
Medical Devices	Medical device claims may not exceed the cleared or approved indications for use as specified by the Food and Drug Administration in the notice of clearance or approval (or, for exempt devices, as specified in the applicable regulation). Examples of excessive or impermissible claims include: (i) targeting use towards children if the device is cleared only for adult use; (ii) advertising for use in a part of the body not specified in the indications for use; and (iii) selling prescription devices without a prescription. For more information, see the Medical Device page on the Food and Drug Administration’s website. See also, Restricted Products: Medical Devices & Accessories.
Native American Products	Listings may not include the terms “Native American” or “Indian,” or the name of any Indian Tribe, if such information in any way inaccurately implies that the product is an “Indian product” or is made by a tribal member or an Indian artisan. For more information, see the Indian Arts and Crafts Act of 1935, the Indian Arts and Crafts Act of 1990 and guidance from the Department of Interior, Indian Arts and Crafts Board.
Pesticides and Pesticide Claims	Pesticides and pesticide products that you list must be registered with the United States Environmental Protection Agency and comply with all requirements of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act or be exempt or excluded from the registration requirements of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act. In addition, listings that claim to (i) have the ability to or contain a substance or mixture of substances intended for preventing, destroying, repelling, or mitigating any pest; or (ii) are intended to disinfect, sanitize, reduce, or mitigate growth or development of microbiological organisms; must be validly registered with the United States Environmental Protection Agency and comply with all the requirements of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act or be exempt or excluded from the registration requirements of that act. For more information, see the Environmental Protection Agency's overview of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) .

Radio Frequency Devices	Listings must comply with FCC equipment authorization rules , which require devices that possess the potential to cause radio frequency interference to other devices to meet FCC technical requirements, which may include obtaining an ID number and/r other authorizations from the FCC. For more information, see the FCC Office of Engineering and Technology equipment authorization page .
Holiday Lights and/or Decorative Outfit Products	Listings for all holiday lights and/or decorative outfit products must comply with, and be certified to, the UL 588 standard.
Extension Cord Products	Listings for all extension cord products must comply with the UL 817 standard.
Replica Art, Coins & Stamps	For information on listing replica art, coins and stamps, see Restricted Products: Art ; Restricted Products: Currency, Coins & Cash Equivalents and Restricted Products: Postage Meters & Stamps .
Testimonials, Endorsements, Feedback and Reviews	Testimonials or endorsements must comply with the Guides Concerning Use of Endorsements and Testimonials in Advertising. For example, you are required to disclose any "material interests" between you and an endorser. Additionally, our feedback and product review policies prohibit paying anyone to create a review or offering gifts or refunds for the removal of product reviews or feedback. For more information, see the Federal Trade Commission's Advertising and Marketing on the Internet: Rules of the Road. For more information, see Prohibited Seller Activities and Actions.

Restricted Product Descriptions

Product Type	Nature of the Restriction
Animals, furs and skins	Listings for animal fur and skin products must comply with the Fur Products Labeling Act, which requires the following disclosures (among others): - o the countries of origin; - o the name of animal or animals that produced the fur or skin, preceded by the words "Fur Origin" (for example, "Fur Origin: Russia"); - o and, if applicable, ▪ a statement that the product contains used or damaged fur, ▪ a statement that the fur is bleached, dyed or otherwise artificially colored fur, or ▪ a statement that the fur is composed wholly or partially of paws, tails, bellies, waste fur or other scrap pieces. Products made to resemble animal furs and skins, but which are not made from those animals, must include in the title and description that the item is not "genuine;" for example, imitation animal clothing must state that the fur is "faux" fur. For more information, see the Federal Trade Commission's In-FUR-mation Alert: How to Comply with the Fur Products Labeling Act and the Fur Act Rules. See also Restricted Products: Animals & Animal Products and Restricted Products: Clothing. If you list animal fur and skin products and your category-specific feed template does not include attribute fields for submitting the required disclosures, upload the necessary information using the "Additional Product Information" Inventory File Template or XSD, or by using the Add A Product tool.
Appliance labeling	Listings must comply with the Appliance Labeling Rule, which requires EnergyGuide labels for large televisions and EnergyGuides or the required textual disclosure for certain appliances (such as refrigerators, washing machines, etc.). In addition to any other information required by Amazon, the disclosure must include the following information in accordance with the Appliance Labeling Rule: (i) the unit's capacity; (ii) estimated average annual energy costs; and (iii) a statement explaining how those costs were calculated. A disclosure is also required for certain light bulbs, pool heaters, plumbing products, and ceiling fans. For more information, see the Federal Trade Commission's Appliance Labeling Frequently Asked Questions.
California Proposition 65	Listings must comply with California's Proposition 65, which requires notice to California customers of products that contain chemicals on California's list of chemicals known to the state to cause cancer or reproductive toxicity. Listings for products containing chemicals on California's list must link to this page. For more information, see the California Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment Proposition 65.

Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act (CPSIA)	Listings of certain toys or games that contain small parts and are intended for use by children must include a CPSIA-specified statement regarding choking hazards. See our Choking Hazard Warning & Lead and Phthalates page for information on how to provide the required warnings. For more information, see the CPSIA Labeling Rule.
Over-the-Counter Drugs, Dietary Supplements and Food	Listings for over-the-counter (OTC) drugs, dietary supplements, and food may not be false or misleading. A claim that an OTC drug diagnoses, cures, mitigates, treats or prevents diseases may not be used unless it is permitted under (i) a rule published by the Food and Drug Administration; (ii) the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act Regulations; or (iii) an approved New Drug Application. Listings for dietary supplements and food may not claim to diagnose, cure, mitigate, treat or prevent diseases unless approved by the Food and Drug Administration. For more information regarding claims about diseases, see the Food and Drug Administration's Guidance for Industry: Structure/Function Claims, Small Entity Compliance Guide. Additionally, information or claims for dietary supplements that imply or are otherwise likely to lead customers to believe that a listed product has undergone a review by the Food and Drug Administration must contain the following disclaimer: "This statement has not been evaluated by the FDA. This product is not intended to diagnose, treat, cure, or prevent any disease." For more information about the marketing of dietary supplements, see the Federal Trade Commission's Dietary Supplements: An Advertising Guide for Industry. For more information, see the Dietary Supplements page, the Food page, and the Drugs page on the Food and Drug Administration's website. See also Restricted Products: Drugs, Drug Paraphernalia & Dietary Supplements and Restricted Products: Food & Beverage. Remember that products requiring a prescription are prohibited.
Textile Descriptions	Listings for textile products (for example clothing, tablecloths, and towels), must state whether the product was (i) Made in the U.S.A; (ii) Imported; (iii) Made in the U.S.A or Imported; or (iv) Made in the U.S.A and Imported. If the product is manufactured in both the U.S.A and abroad, select "Made in the U.S.A or Imported;" if the product is assembled in the U.S.A with imported materials, select "Made in the U.S.A and Imported." The information regarding country of origin should match the product's label. With exceptions, tags, labels, advertisements, listings or other product identifications for textile products must disclose the generic names and percentages by weight of the fibers present in the product in an amount of 5 percent or more in order of predominance using generic fiber names recognized by the Federal Trade Commission. The use of non-generic fiber names, unless specifically recognized by the Federal Trade Commission, is not permitted. For example, you may not refer to your textile product as "bamboo" or "soy" unless appropriately qualified by their respective generic names, rayon and azlon (e.g., rayon derived from bamboo, azlon derived from soy, etc.). The fiber content should match the product's label.

	For more information, see "Threading Your Way Through the Labeling Requirements Under the Textile and Wool Act," the Textile Act and the Textile Act Regulations. If you list textile products and your category-specific feed template does not include attribute fields for submitting the required disclosures, upload the necessary information using the "Additional Product Information" Inventory File Template or XSD, or by using the Add A Product tool.
Wool Product Descriptions	Listings for wool products (items made of wool or recycled wool, which includes fibers from sheep or lamb fleece, Angora or Cashmere goat hair, camel hair, alpaca hair, llama hair and vicuna hair) you must indicate whether the product was (i) Made in the U.S.A; (ii) Imported; (iii) Made in the U.S.A or Imported; or (iv) Made in the U.S.A and Imported. If the product is manufactured in both the U.S.A and abroad, select "Made in the U.S.A or Imported;" if the product is assembled in the U.S.A with imported materials, select "Made in the U.S.A and Imported." The information regarding country of origin should match the product's label. With certain exceptions, tags, labels, advertisements, listings or other product identifications for wool products must disclose the generic names and percentages by weight of the fibers present in the product in descending order of predominance (including non-wool textile fibers). The use of non-generic fiber names, unless specifically recognized by the Federal Trade Commission, is not permitted. For example, you may not refer to your wool product as "pashmina" (which is not a recognized generic fiber name), but should instead use the appropriate generic name for the fiber (e.g., cashmere, wool, etc.). The fiber content should match the product's label. For more information, see "Threading Your Way Through the Labeling Requirements Under the Textile and Wool Act," the Wool Act and the Wool Act Regulations.
