About Us

We're a family-owned company in Grand Rapids, MI. We're dedicated to making the best hand tools you'll ever own, and we start by designing the products that we personally believe in and want to own ourselves.

To meet our users' needs, we do a lot of things differently than other tool companies. We hire the best engineers and designers and ask them to focus on putting your dollars where it matters—on functional aspects like using the best materials, refining production processes, and maximizing strength and leverage. Our tools are designed to work better and cost less than the competition's because we realize that tools, like many things, don't have to be expensive to work well—they need to be made well to work well.
